Wedding Guest List

When it comes to determining your guest list, you should first make a list of those people whom you absolutely have to or want to invite. Then, make a list of people you'd like to invite, but don't necessarily need to. We call this the "A" list, and the "B" list. Some brides will send invites to the "A" list a little early, and then when the responses come in, they will make up for the "A" list no's by sending invites to people on the "B" list. This helps ensure that all the people you needed to invite get invited, and the others can make up the difference for those who decline.

THE A LIST

THE B LIST